

Paul Maar, Nina Dulleck

Kakadu und Kukuda

Mit Gedichten, Geschichten und Spielen durchs ganze Jahr.

Kakadu and Kukuda. A whole year of poems, stories and games

Diverse and colourful, that's how everything I write is! And that is how versatile Paul Maar is.

Paul Maar exceeds himself in this beautiful compendium and uses the full spectrum of his many talents. Delightfully witty poems, nonsense rhymes, interactive ideas, tantalising tongue twisters and charming stories about the Little Kangaroo provide ample reading material for an entire year. All of the texts centre on animals, a favourite topic with children, and are beautifully illustrated by Nina Dulleck – a truly gorgeous book for children of 6 and over and their parents!

AUTHOR

Paul Maar

Paul Maar was born on 13 December 1937 in Schweinfurt. After successfully completing grammar school with his Abitur in his pocket, he studied painting and history of art at the Stuttgart School of Art. He then spent six years teaching art. Today a freelance author and illustrator, Maar lives in Bamberg. He is married and has three grown-up children. Paul Maar writes children's and young people's books and translates children's books from English in collaboration with his wife, Nele Maar. He also writes children's plays and scripts for children's television programmes, and travels around the world for the Goethe Institute promoting children's literature. His books have received numerous prizes and been translated into many languages. Paul Maar is no less successful as a playwright. He usually dreams up the characters in his stories himself, but also illustrates other writers' works. His best-known (own) characters are without doubt the Sat (Sams), a thoroughly impudent mythical creature, Lippel the dreamer and the little kangaroo. He also writes and illustrates picture stories for magazines.

ILLUSTRATOR
