Little Robber Rapido 1: The Thumping Great Robber Racket

A Robber Who Doesn't Want to Rob?!

Amusing and perfectly pitched for its target audience: the kind of topsy-turvy world that children love

New series by bestselling author Nina Weger: 175,000 books sold

A robber who doesn't want to rob anyone. That's Little Robber Rapido, Nina Weger's lovable new hero. "But why do robbers have to rob people?" Little Robber Rapido wonders. The answer is quite obvious to his friend, Rapscaillon the Raccoon. It's because they're called robbers! "But why are they called robbers?" Sigh. This is precisely the problem: Rapido asks too many questions. He thinks too much. In fact, he's completely un-robber-like. His father, Robber-in-Chief Rigorous, thinks so too. But then Rapido proves them all wrong!

AUTHOR

Nina Weger

Nina Weger was born in 1970 and, after successfully completing grammar school, spent a season with Circus Belly working as a tightrope walker before attending journalism school and then working as an editor and assistant to , among others, film director Dieter Wedel. Today she lives with her husband and two children in Hanover, where she works as a freelance author. Her works include scripts for well-known German television series, such as "Notruf Hafenkante" and "Edel und Stark". In her spare time, she and a friend also do voluntary work, running a children's circus, Kinderzirkus Giovanni. The circus has been presented with the German children's award "Deutscher Kinderpreis".
