Dear Colleagues and Friends,

6 months have gone by which means it is time for a new catalogue. We proudly present volume 13 which is full of exciting colourful novelties for the very young ones and thrilling reads for the more advanced readers.

A year ago we first presented the Alea Aquarius series written by Tanya Stewner. By now we sold translation rights to six publishers and look forward to many more to come.

Gregor, the horribly handsome little monster staring You Are Oh So Horribly Handsome! (Du bist so schrecklich schön!) by Eva Dax and Sabine Dully made his first appearance in autumn last year. So far, we managed to sell translation rights to five publishers. The Dutch edition was published just in time for The Netherlands and Flanders being Guest of Honour of this year's Frankfurt Book Fair. The English edition is scheduled for October.

Eva Dax and Sabine Dully created a new picture book from which we have taken the cover illustration of this catalogue (see page 7).

I would especially like to draw your attention to our huge range of wonderful board books. This season we are happy to introduce two new characters: Mats and Frida.

Stefanie Taschinski wrote a new novel for readers age 10+: Caspar and the Master of Oblivion, whereas Tanja Heitmann contributed a novel: In a Summernight Like Tonight for readers aged 14+. Last but not least, please pay attention to Antonia Michaelis' great new novel: The Assassins for young adult readers aged 16+.

Katharina Depken will be back in the office by November. Bianca Kuchenbrod will attend the Frankfurt Book Fair with me and afterwards leave Hamburg for France. We are all keeping our fingers crossed that she will be offered a great job to continue the good work she did for us.

I'm looking forward to seeing you in Frankfurt.

Best wishes

Bad Heavens!
It's All Grey Without You

32 Pages | ISBN 978-3-95882-005-0

First the sun is shining, then thick clouds move in and raindrops fall from the sky. When lightning and thunder begin, even a small dog will run away. The powerful pictures and understated text also tell the story of a child in emotional turmoil – one minute, everything is fine, the next, anger surfaces and tears well up. But when the right person is there to give a comforting hug, everything is soon all right again.

A poetic journey through all your emotions with angry clouds and joyful bursts of sunshine.

How King Beanie Found the Truly Furious Princess Rikiki

64 Pages | ISBN 978-3-95882-106-4

With his long-legged servant and his tubby cook, King Beanie goes in search of the terribly tiny, but awfully angry Princess Rikiki. His subjects are highly amused to see them go, but along the way, the three demonstrate the advantages of their supposed shortcomings. And what about Prince Rikiki? She takes one look at her motley pursuers and bursts out laughing so heartily that King Beanie immediately falls in love with her. A magnificent wedding feast is arranged – and from then on, nobody is mocked any more!

The toe sock feels so lonely: Who on earth is it going to celebrate Christmas with? Everyone else is so different. The slipper sock is far too slow, the knee sock is too tall, and the sneaker sock is rushing round the Christmas tree so fast that all the baubles are falling off. Then the sound of music wafts in from the living room. A small finger glove is playing Christmas carols on the piano. They sound even better with five toes playing the accompaniment!

Something is happening and I am part of it ... Dark days. Snow. Shadows between the trees. Footsteps. When I turn round, there's nothing to be seen. Basil is the only reason I drag myself to boarding school every day. But it's getting darker and darker, and there's something behind me. I can sense its presence, just as surely as I know that my coming to Grovegate was no accident.

Grovegate, the mysterious boarding school at the heart of the forest, is the gateway to a world full of magical beings for 14-year-old Misha. She discovers that the father she thought was dead is actually alive, but half-man, half-bird, and that only she, as a child of mixed race, has the power to unite the two worlds and put an end to the bitter fighting in the strange grove. Can the mysterious Basil help her? Or is Kyle the better choice? You have the power to change everything.

Feli:
... is happy with Jonah. He's good for her and she's enjoying her first steady relationship. But when Ben lets her know that he's planning to change, Feli has a wobble. Is Ben serious and does he have feelings for her, after all?

Lucy:
... is really excited because the Stage School's big summer musical is coming up and she has a major role in it. No sooner is the show over, than Klara kisses her in front of the audience.

DivineSpark – Don't Love Me

A Great Love That Cannot Be.
A Longing Brings Worlds Together.

Marah Woolf

DivineSpark – Don't Love Me

464 Pages | ISBN 978-3-7915-0029-4

Jess and her best friend Robyn are spending their holidays in a remote summer camp in the Rocky Mountains. Jess is planning to brush up on her Ancient Greek while she's there as well as enjoying the summer with her friends before their last year together at high school begins. But then she meets good-looking Cayden, and immediately feels there's something familiar about him – his emerald-green eyes remind her of the boy who once appeared to her in a curiously vivid dream.

Jess simply cannot keep away from Cayden even though he seems to be more interested in Robyn. When Cayden rescues her from Scylla, the terrible monster of Greek mythology, Jess's suspicion becomes a certainty: Cayden is not the boy he makes himself out to be. But by this time, Jess has long since fallen in love with him.

What Jess doesn't know is that Cayden has his own agenda. The son of a god, he made an agreement with Zeus centuries ago and has been awaiting its fulfilment ever since. Only if he can find a girl who can resist his charms will Zeus grant his dearest wish: to finally become mortal.

Marah Woolf is one of the most successful self-publishers in Germany. To date, over 1,000,000 copies of her novels (e-book, paperback, audio book) have been sold.

Marah Woolf was born in Saxony-Anhalt, Germany, in 1971 and still lives there today with her husband and three children. She studied history and politics and made her great dream come true when she published her first novel in 2011. Since then, her books have sold more than a million times over, in both e-book and paperback format. For her research, Marah and her family lived for a full year in Scotland.

Woolf also writes romantic and short novels under the pseudonym Emma C. Moore.

SilverMoonLight, the first book in the four-part MoonLightSaga, was awarded the first Indie Author Prize at the 2013 Leipzig Book Fair. The MoonLightSaga has been published in French by the reputable French publishing company Michel Lafon. The MoonLightSaga and the BookLess series have both been published in Korea by Paran Media. The author published the English translation of the original MoonLightSaga in 2014.
