Oetinger

Dear Colleagues and Friends

This year marks a very special milestone: Oetinger turns 80! The celebrations for our 75th anniversary fell victim to the pandemic, but this year we are making up for it in style. Our motto has always been "Giving Wings to Imagination" – and our new Spring programme stays true to that spirit. There is much to discover, so let me share a few personal highlights and innovations:

We are expanding our games segment, focusing on card games with innovative mechanics. If you enjoy a good puzzle with a hint of suspense, I recommend a round of "Crime Places" – perfect for solving riddles together and maybe getting a little spooked along the way.

Our international bestseller series "101 Fabulous Friends" continues to grow and thrive, now translated into 20 languages. This season we welcome the "101 Fairies" to the family. What comes next? We certainly have more ideas up our sleeve – stay tuned!

"Seahorse Stables" is a delightful new series for readers aged 6 and up: "Ariel" meets "My Little Pony". Why not tell horse dreams underwater? Our programme team came up with this charming concept, and the result is as adorable as it sounds.

Just in time for our anniversary, we are proud to present the first in-house character collaboration in our children's book history. "The Oggles" have been delighting readers young and old for over 35 years. "The Sat" – that cheeky, red-haired creature covered in blue wishing spots – has been part of our programme for more than 50 years! "The Oggles and the Sat: The Wonky Wishing Machine" brings together the best of both worlds in a compelling story, proving that even after all this time, there is room for fresh ideas.

Speaking of fresh ideas: I am personally thrilled about Sandra Regnier's duology "The Prince of the Night Realm", a YA romantasy that conjures the realm of the Erl-King. Whether you prefer your faye or your Tolkien elves, I love well-crafted fantasy, and the author's highly successful "Pan" series has set my expectations high for this new venture.

Last but not least: we have prepared an updated Christmas catalogue featuring all our holiday titles releasing through the end of 2026 – perfect timing for anyone still looking for seasonal books this year.

And now – happy browsing!

Best wishes to you all,

Ulrike

Aunt Polly – Honestly fibbed

For his tenth birthday, Mike doesn't get the cool toy he's been hoping for – but a mysterious old book instead, sent by his eccentric Aunt Polly. Supposedly, she found it in America under daring (and possibly exaggerated) circumstances. That summer, Mike visits Polly at her creaky old house, complete with two unruly dogs, carrier pigeons, and no hot water. Between collecting strange words and inventing wild tales with his new friend Mona, life feels like an adventure – until a man in ever-changing disguises appears and starts ransacking Polly's home. A spy? A treasure hunter?

The longer Mike stays, the more secrets unravel. What's hidden within the mysterious book – and how much of Aunt Polly's extraordinary storytelling is actually true?

Konrad or the Factory Made Boy

Bertie Bartolotti is a middle-aged woman and an unapologetic free spirit. Her chaotic life flips upside down when a mysterious can arrives by mail and pops open to reveal Conrad, a perfectly polite seven-year-old straight from the child-manufacturing factory. Mrs. Bartolotti may have ordered him by accident (or simply forgotten), but she grows fond of him fast – despite both having zero idea how real families are meant to work. Her friend Mr. Thomas, however, has no shortage of well-meant but thoroughly unwanted fatherly advice. At school, Conrad's flawless manners don't exactly win him friends, until Kitty next door steps in and becomes his first same-age friend. Just when things start to improve, a letter arrives: Conrad was delivered to the wrong address and must be handed over to his "real" buyers! Now Mrs. Bartolotti, Conrad, Kitty – and even Mr. Thomas – need a plan, and quickly, if they hope to keep their odd little family together...

The mighty bird, Eylo, leads him to the hidden Valley of the Eagle Riders, a place where courage, friendship, and magic soar side by side.

They fly higher than any other bird and have no enemies in the sky. But in the end, I’d probably be more of a seagull – they’re never caught, never tamed, never trained. And besides fish, they also enjoy a piece of cheesecake or a French fry now and then!”

But Lainey doesn't expect Parker to be a perfect gentleman – or that he'll handle her family drama as smoothly as he does his matches in the ring. Soon, every line between fake and real begins to blur, and not even their fake-dating contract can stop Lainey from breaking her own rules ...

Lessons of Hearts and Magic

Lou wants nothing more than to visit the heart of magic. But the academy where rune magic is taught is taboo for women. Like most things in Olresa. Women's magic is branded as dangerous and women with strong magic are hunted down. Lou's situation becomes even more precarious when her magic awakens – stronger than most and triggered by her burgeoning feelings for Tom, who is allowed to study at the academy. To escape persecution, Lou puts everything on the line: Disguised as a man, she sneaks into the heart of magic. There she discovers a secret that not only shakes her heart, but also her world.

Female power: He's the Prince of Hades, she's his bodyguard. From New York to Hawaii to Hades – Greek mythology with a fresh and surprising twist. A divine tale balancing Romantasy and modern love.

Fighting Fate

Taru has spent centuries eking out a dismal existence: cursed for an unforgivable crime, the prince of Hades cannot leave his New York apartment. The Furies are waiting to tear him apart the moment he slips up. But a chance encounter with Rio changes everything – by her side, he becomes invisible to them. So Taru hires her as his unlikely protector.

Together, they embark on a journey through both the real and the mythological world, searching for nymphs, the Sphinx, and finally Pandora, the only one who can break his curse. Yet nothing can prepare Rio and Taru for what they will discover about themselves. And about one another.
